

30 April 1971

STATINTL

TO: [REDACTED] Executive Officer, Office of Finance

In reference to your request for some of the advantages of having two branches as opposed to three in C&L Division, let me give the following:

- (1) By enclosing the personnel in Key Building in a secure area it strengthened the recommendation that the activities would function more effectively and efficiently in one centralized branch.
- (2) The line of command and supervision would be greatly enhanced.
- (3) All the files would be consolidated into a centralized system proving easy access for all uses thereby eliminating the need for duplicate files.
- (4) Work distribution at the auditor level would be equitable due to the ability to rotate personnel. This also enhances professional capabilities and further eliminates problems as absences and peak workloads.

[REDACTED]
Chief
Certification and Liaison Division

STATINTL

25X9

Approved For Release 2000/09/08 : CIA-RDP80-01341A000200020014-2

Next 2 Page(s) In Document Exempt

Approved For Release 2000/09/08 : CIA-RDP80-01341A000200020014-2